Lack of communication between official organisations and the community.

The physical environment creates a stereotype of the community members from both outside and within.

Parents don't take time to do things with their kids.

There are no inter-generational meeting opportunities.

Poor relationships within families and the community mean kids don't have role models and therefore lack aspiration and challenges.

The closure of the school means there is no meeting point for parents and has led to social bullying by parents from other schools.

CUBE create problems and then don't deal with them or try to treat them, not prevent them in the first place.

Find opportunities to improve the physical environment.

Open communication channels between youths and adults.

Opportunities that are attractive for all ages and creates a community space.

Opportunities for family activities, either as a single unit or with other families.

Create interaction opportunities for parents both within and outside of the estate.

Open communication channels between CUBE and the community.

Green Gorillaz
The goal we had was to create pride and ownership in the community. Inspired by the Guerrilla Gardening movement to reclaim urban landscapes, Green Gorillaz was formed out of the idea of acts of urban terrorism on the right side of the law. The Green Gorillaz is a collective of residents spanning the generations, coming together to create short term and long term projects that promote communication, healthy environments and eating habits.

Wyndford Olympics
Wyndford olympics is a monthly event that uses the physical space to hold competitive events. It promotes intergenerational activities, provides young people with something to do and inspires communities to rediscover their surroundings in a new and inventive way. It is fun, involves minimal costs and is organised by a small team of residents. The olympics are organised via a central scoreboard that is in the centre of Wyndford where events and winners are announced.

Super Duper School
It would have numerous facilities, and open 24h. The people of Wyndford would be asked what they wanted there. Bingo would run one evening because everyone likes bingo, and the money raised would be invested back in the school as resources. The children would use these resources to put on a show at the next Bingo, to get people to come back and show that their money is really re-invested back into the children.

Go Wyndford Leisure Centre
A community hub that runs projects for young and old encouraging inter-generational involvement. The community hub is shaped closely with the community and the local agencies integrating skills development schemes and the activities will be run by community members.

Green Gorillaz

This proposal will focus on spanning the generations, and bringing together the community to fight the war of Glasgow Marble (cement)! Bringing back an injection of pride into their community by a series of projects that promote communication, healthy environments and active healthy eating habits.

GetGoing!

This proposal will focus on providing Wyndford community with diversionary activities. Some activities will raise funds to support others. Activities will be focussed for all age groups in the community and use the local surroundings as inspiration. Funding could be put towards permanent installations as well as regular events and meetings. Key is incentives and regular evaluation.

ListenUp

This proposal will focus on making the consultation process for regeneration and development work more transparent, leading to more sustainable outcomes. It will enable communication between authorities and key community members and these key community members and other members of the community. The proposal will use the situation in Wyndford as a prototype scheme.
